

BEHIND THE SKIRMISH LINE

Thank you for supporting independent documentary photography.

Behind the Skirmish Line represents an early chapter in my effort to document service, sacrifice, and the people who operate in environments most of society never sees firsthand. While the images in this collection vary in subject matter, they are united by a common theme: authentic moments captured in real-world settings.

My background as a military medic, paramedic, educator, and documentary photographer has provided unique access to communities, professions, and stories that often exist beyond public view. My philosophy is simple:

Reality builds trust.

The images in this collection were not staged, directed, or recreated. They are moments that occurred naturally and were preserved through photography.

These photographs serve as both art and documentation. Their value may increase with time as the people, places, and moments depicted become part of the historical record.
